

A photograph of a stone wall with a large, rectangular opening. The wall is constructed from large, rectangular, reddish-brown stone blocks. To the left of the opening, there is a rough, dark grey rock formation. The ground in front of the wall is a light-colored, sandy or dusty surface. The text is overlaid on the upper portion of the image, centered horizontally.

Revelation 05:04 And I wept much, because no man was found worthy to open and to read the book, neither to look thereon.