

A vibrant, long-exposure photograph of a waterfall in a dense forest. The water is blurred into white, silky streams as it flows over dark, wet rocks covered in bright green moss. The surrounding foliage is thick and verdant, with various shades of green leaves and branches. The overall scene is peaceful and natural, with soft lighting filtering through the trees.

Mark 02:18 And the disciples of John and of the Pharisees used to fast: and they come and say unto him, Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but thy disciples fast not?